The fact was first reported by The San Francisco Chronicle , after it was already revealed that agents left behind the mayor's cellphone, as well as her computer. Within five days, a federal grand jury issued a subpoena to the Bay Area city - one that demanded all 'documents and communications related to Andre Jones' be turned over. Also asked for were all 'calendar entries or records' of meetings that included either one of the two since June 2022 - five months before Thao, 39, was even elected. More than a month later, feds have yet to say why they are interested in the pair, but the seizure of Jones' cellphone raise questions about the potential involvement of a man who played a small but significant role in the mayor's political career.

Nursing professor Monifa Willis was given the $300,000 job in March, two years after Jenkins asked her to head the department's Victim Services Division. The pair were on same high school track-and-field team and have hung out together at restaurants, football games and waxing salons in the last three years according to their Venmo accounts.
